SUBJECT:

Recommendation for CIA member of Advisory Committee

I have two clear thoughts and one tentative personal recommendation.

The two clear thoughts are that our man should be senior -- we should have about the most clear "other fellow's eye" view in the government and hence much influence, which is only possible if our man is senior and able to speak -- and that he should have an imaginative view of the way intelligence actually works. The latter seems to me to argue strongly against anyone from security.

The personal recommendation is [REDACTED] he often speaks on this problem, is deeply security-minded and revolted at leaks, but at the same time knows the kind of thing [REDACTED] turned up -- i.e., how much the Soviets can get from material we probably can't keep from them in any case, tho of course we don't want to do their digging for them. STATINTL

STATINTL I can't think of anyone else on the DD/I side who would be as good. Moreover, [REDACTED] has not been called on for many outside jobs, he has real job character, and responsibility, and is much more of a "digger" than [REDACTED] (the temptation to pair them is wholly misleading). Naturally, you would want to check how much of a burden it would be, and to get Sherman's concurrence. In view of Sherman's work on [REDACTED] I think he should regard this as a chance to contribute constructively, and would feel [REDACTED] was a fine man to do it. STATINTL
